

MEDIA RELEASE

dClinic and Vital Life Management set to create Healthcare history with their Indonesian Digital Clinics

* Reported in Bali Tribune and Jakarta Times (22nd May 2018)

Dr. Richard Satur, provider of the Digital Clinic platform dClinic, and Dr Robby Thoeng from Vital Life Management, have agreed to become long term strategic partners with the aim of establishing advanced health and vitality services across Indonesia. These vitality centres are designed to address the accelerating “widening gap” in healthcare service provision as a function of the growth of worldwide healthcare service demand.

Both organisations are totally committed to further developing and implementing an advanced “digital healthcare platform”, based on the dClinic platform, for the provision of healthcare coupled with wellness services. The deployment of this new Blockchain driven platform aims to revolutionise healthcare delivery across the acute hospital sector, specialist tertiary care, primary care and aged care settings.

Vital Life Management has undertaken extensive research and planning on seven (7) initial high priority projects in Jakarta and Bali and these projects are ready to commence. Equally, dClinic is the next generation Digital Clinic platform developed by a Healthcare Software and Platform provider with extensive experience in creating patient centric care solutions. The synergy between Vital Life Management and dClinic therefore creates a natural partnership.

In addition, dClinic is planning to go through a token sale, Prospectus to be released around Aug 2018. As part of this token sale, both organisations will enter into a formal Strategic Partnership Agreement (SPA) to jointly pursue the first group of priority projects and establish operations in partnership in Indonesia.

This SPA and all business dealings between these partners will recognise and comply with the legal, regulatory, policy and legislative requirements to operate these businesses in Indonesia and will satisfy all token sale regulations.

“We don’t believe there is another token sale offering that comes close to providing Institutional and Private investors the ability to be part of this revolution in Healthcare. We are also confident that the value of being part of an token sale that has both physical assets and a world-defining Healthcare (Blockchain) Technology Platform is a very attractive proposition”, said Dr. Richard Satur (CEO).

The overarching aim of both organisations will be to improve population health outcomes and to set new health care provisioning standards, achieving “a new paradigm” for health care service delivery across Indonesia, while maximising financial return on investment (ROI) for all investors.

All business dealings have and will continue to be conducted in the “true spirit of co-operation”, that has already forged innovation through a unique, soon to be announced, Token sale offering.

For further details, please contact Dr. Richard Satur, CEO dClinic, on +61 412433167, or Dr Robby Thoeng, MD CEO Vital Life Management, on +62 81999640531.